e Learning Product Training Modules released

Williamstown, NJ – August 26, 2014 – New electrical products training modules have been introduced by Technical Sales and Consulting in their “Training to Go” series.

The self learning interactive programs are interactive with vibrant animated slides that include quiz questions.

The programs are developed from industry and academic expertise. They are designed so that both the beginner and experienced personnel can benefit from taking the courses.

The modules are scalable for viewing on any computer or device such as an iPad or iPhone.

“I think there is a need for basic training that expands personnel product knowledge and adds value for their customers” says Owner Tom Baselice.

Circuit Breaker and Motor Starter modules are available now. The Motor Control Center module is scheduled for release in September. Excerpts from these interactive programs can be viewed at <http://TSandC.com/services/elearning/>

Pricing is based on per student or site license basis making it affordable for any size business.
